Who studies on the Cambridge Preparation courses?
The course provide participants with an intensive language course that will prepare them to successfully undertake Cambridge First (FCE) and Cambridge Advanced (CAE) exams and provide them with the language skills necessary to communicate effectively in both a professional and academic environment.

The Programme
The courses (10 weeks) aim to ensure that learners will be able to ‘deal confidently’ with a range of reading and listening texts, write effectively in a range of genres: letters, reports, reviews etc., develop a communicative competence for face-to-face interaction and have good control over grammar and vocabulary at CEFR Level B2-C1. Exam techniques and exam practice are integrated into the programme to further prepare learners for the Cambridge First or Advanced examinations. There is flexibility in programme delivery to suit the learning styles of individuals, including the use of a learner journal to encourage the development of reflective and critical thinking.

The course is a 250 hour course (total), with 20 hours of structured teaching hours per week and a supervised interactive online learning component of five hours per week.
